On 4th July 2008, the Singapore Police Force successfully nab the culprits involved in the Boat Quay street fights with the help of "live" video footages transmitted over the AIRAYA Wireless-GRID system.

Upon spotting the fights from the "live" video footages, the police officer in the control room was able to dispatch the Police cars immediately to the location whilst the officer continued to observe the situation via the CCTV monitors and update the ground resources.

Police arrived at the location within five minutes and all the group of about 15 suspects had fled in different directions. However, with the help of the CCTV footage, the officer in the control room was able to track the location of one of the suspects and provided this information to the officers on the ground, resulting in his arrest. Ground enquiries by the Police officers led to the arrest of the second suspect. The video footages will be used later in court to charge the culprits.

For this year, the Singapore Police has managed to crack a total of 5 cases of street related crimes in the Boat Quay areas.

The arrest of the culprits in the Boat Quay incident was reported in the Channel 8 news here in Singapore on 4th July 2008.
